BACKGROUND

For the past decade, Randi Rossario has been making viral inroads in the digital media space as a radio personality, published author, mental health enthusiast, and a serial entrepreneur. She has demonstrated longevity in the world of media many times again, garnering large audiences across multiple platforms, and accumulating millions of views and likes throughout her journey.

Today, Randi focuses on her personal brand, consisting of her self-curated digital content, product line expansion, global tours, and some of her newly-released televised productions under her self-established entity, Rose Garden Productions Company.

CURRENT PROJECTS

In addition to touring across the country with other influencers and brands, Randi's tv debut took place this fall, when she made history by launching the first independent talk show to the Tubi streaming platform.

The show, which labels as an intimate “round-table” style discussion panel, features topics and conversation points aimed at the millennial pop-culture genre, with special guests that include celebrity talent, influencers, movie/tv stars, and a plethora of individuals that bring a rather unique style of dialogue to the setting. Seasons one is currently available for view, and a full second season is slated to be released by the top of 2024.
